

Parlia ol. XXVIII-No. 4

ittacks Institu

cludes

S. the U

S

R

to t

lations

Auckland, N.Z., Thursday, May 7th, 1953

re Concrete -- Not Abstractions AI P

We print here an abridgement of an address given by Jean al Sartre at the Vienna Congress of the Peoples for Peace, Dec-ber, 1952. We do this, not because it reflects our own views or ause it is a particularly inspiring piece of oratory, but because feel that we should know what others in the world are thinking. (Jean Paul Sartre is one of the more prominent post-war ters and dramatists who have arisen on the Continent. As a ng man he studied under the philosophers, Husserl and Heidect of t nere fig has cPaul Sartre at the Vienna Congress of the Peoples for Peace, Deccontrol ember, 1952. We do this, not because it reflects our own views or ne-Ber because it is a particularly inspiring piece of oratory, but because pointed we feel that we should know what others in the world are thinking. rthied writers and dramatists who have arisen on the Continent. erious aces v thich k young man he studied under the philosophers, Husserl and Heidid mine egger, and now has come to be regarded as the foremost exponent most of the philosophical trend known as "Existentialism.". illed

The thinking and the politics of to-day are leading us towards a mas-sacre because they are abstracted from reality. The world has been cut in two, and each half is afraid of the other. From then on, everyone acts ied by their their would are leading us towards a mas-alists scree because they are abstracted rump from reality. The world has been cut eaded in two, and each half is afraid of the hods other. From then on, everyone acts to enswithout knowledge of the wishes and alists rump eaded hods to con decisions of his neighbour across the preat street; we make our own conjectures, te prea street, we make our own conjectures, lity. I give no credit to what is said, make t 20 y our own interpretations and frame no dit our own conduct according to what al prob we imagine our opponent is going to hite or do. From that point the only possible favour position is the one summed up by upreme that most stupid expression of all defen ages—if you want peace, prepare for anywh war. Triumph of abstraction! On this upren anyw ational basis men themselves become ab-and the stractions. On this basis each man is ourts, the other man, the possible enemy; we mistrust ourselves. In my coun-try, France, it is uncommon to meet meas mal timen; in the main one meets only stand tags and names. mal ti The new and admirable thing about nciples this peace congress is that it has brought together men-men of every kind and opinion. Not men from nohe pres frien ons, and opinion. Not men from nowhere, of course; they all have nations and they have not come here to deny their nationalities. Quite the contrary, in fact. In wartime nationalities becomes separated. Then they allties becomes separated. Then they are nothing but permission to shoot the enemy on sight. To-day, for the first time they are coming together. Just as the abstract leads to conflict, so one might say that the concrete unites us, for the concrete is the totality of the bonds that unite men menor themselves. And if us think over. e, to t among themselves. And if we think ur com simply of this totality of the bonds or le that unite us we shall see that to at experimentation and the set of the set of ion Dr if it could be shown that their co-existence was economically impossi-elling ble; that is if it so happened that the onths a peoples living under one of these be hop regimes, in order to work and to satneeded the desisfy their hunger, needed the des-truction of the other regime. Now there is nobody saving that. Repred up i any sh in tren sentatives of socialist countries, for not abstract that the French govern-in their part, tell us in so many words ment is keeping in power the govern-ent we that they want peace and that co-existence is possible. But the expo-and is granting to him little by little, pressed by Burnham, the State De-partment adviser, nor by Monnerot or Aron, the two French theorists whose work is to defend the Atlantic Pact. Aron goes so far as to remark that the present attitude of the U.S.A. towards the Chinese government is not initiable on the ground of as not justifiable on the grounds of eco-nomic necessity because in 1939 U.S. trade with China represented only trade with China represented only 3% of U.S. foreign trade. What do they say then? Well they talk of political imperialism, of socialist aggression, of religious wards and of a crusade against communism. In short, these are political, not economic arguments—and passionate ones at that, aiming at attitudes and an ideology.

In a word, they are afraid, and--what comes to the same thing-they are trying to make others afraid. And some people who want peace as surely as we want it are being drawn into of running the dangerous situation the dangerous situation of running the risk of making war against "the others" out of sheer terror that "the others" might make war on them. Now what answer does this con-gress provide for such people? Just this—that agreement is possible upon any subject once fear has been put aside, when instead of becoming lost in vain conjecture on the intentions and wishes of "the others" we ask them in so many words what those inthem in so many words what those in-tentions and wishes are.

MORE ABSTRACTIONS

There is a Chinese government rec-ognised as such by the whole Chinese people. It has all the power in its hands. It runs the economy of the country. It possesses a strong army. And like any normal government, it is in China. But for the United States and the United Nations it does not exist. For them the Chinese govern-ment consists of a handful of exiles living in Washington or at Lake Success. Is this not abstract? Is it the historical situation.

In the main, those of us who are here have neither the science of the technician nor the jurisdiction of the diplomat, but we have an immense advantage over both in that we are real, concrete. The peoples are con-crete and could not themselves vio-late bistory because they are bistory late history because they are history. We have not among us the special-ists who juggle with peoples in the United Nations, but we have the rep-resentatives of those peoples, of those who suffer most from sheer abstract situations. They have not come to tell us about the motives of prudence which demand the continuation of the divisions which are tearing the world apart under the protection of armies of occupation. They have come to tell us that they can no longer put up with the lines, the zones, the divi-sions and the armies; and it is they who can tell us before anyone else where the remedies lie. And when they tell us simply that they want these armies to leave, they already have helped us to make considerable progress simply because they have shown us what the truth of the situa-tion is. And they will do more than that. If for instance the German delegates come to us French and say the dismemberment of Germany that -which we consider dangerous to us -is, for them also, intolerable, then they will have demonstrated the pro-found solidarity uniting any French-man who opposes war with any German who opposes war with any Ger-man who wants German unity. In the United Nations agreements are reached at best by mutual concessions where here they will be reached by taking a census of our common re-quirements. But it goes without say-ing that those difficulties which main-tain the cold war are horn of the cold tain the cold war are born of the cold war itself. They will never be sup-pressed without a radical change in international relations.

ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE THE GOAL

When we speak of the co-existence of two economic systems I do not believe we mean the co-existence of two blocs, for a co-existence is not a juxblocs, for a co-existence is not a jux-taposition. A juxtaposition of two blocs maintains distrust and ends by leading from cold war to hot war. The African and Asian delegates will tell us how they see the task of the peoples of their continents in the establishment of peace. As a Euro-pean guest I shall personally say what I should like to see for Western Euro-I should like to see for Western Eurdencies to-day is a more or less vio-lent conflict between the masses and certain categories of leader. But if we persevere, these very character-istics might to-morrow, on the con-trary, give to the countries of the West the role of mediators. I do not mean by that that they should come in as mediators in diplomatic dis-cussions—we are not here to talk about diplomats—but I mean that they should be the terrain where the they should be the terrain where the currents coming from the capitalist American and from the socialist U.S.S.R. would meet and intermingle. I say that a renewal or an intensi-fication of the currents of commerce between the eastern democracies and those of Western Europe would not only be in accord with concrete real-ity, but would help to make of Europe (including a revived Germany and Austria) one of the indispen-sable hinges between the great powers.

Now this would be possible on two conditions. The first is that the West-ern European States should be able concert their efforts in an examination of the means by which they can progressively recover their economic independence and loosen the bonds of this Atlantic Pact which, ignoring their ambiguous situation and their abundant internal contradictions, just simply turns them into United States' soldiers and forces them to join a bloc when this is precisely what they do not want and cannot what they do not want and cannot do. They could then, to the extent that they had regained their independence, re-establish friendly relations and solidarity with the Eastern democra-cies and put back some sense into treaties like the Franco-Soviet pact. The geographical division of which German is to-day in danger of dying, is with us an invisible social divi-sion, but it is the same thing, a sort of impenetrable vacuum separating one half of the nation from the other. This abstract separation causes us to treat our cousin or our neighbour not as a cousin or as a neighbour, but as an enemy cut off from us by a line of fire. This distance has been created without trenches or cannons, but there is none-the-less a no-man's land dividing the people of France. And this no man's land, the result of three years of cold war, is each day helping to make our countries factors for war instead of the factors for peace that they should be.

By JEAN PAUL SARTRE

Auckland University College Students' Paper

The Editors accept as little responsibility as possible for the contents of this paper, and the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the Editors or of the A.U.C.S.A. Executive.

APATHY REGURGITATED

Editorials are at any time little read and so are comparatively valueless. But custom prevails.

There is a great temptation to deal with some useless abstract subject which would according to many be perfectly in keeping with a University publication. There is also a great temptation to grind the old axe of student apathy. As most editors succumb to this at some stage I am giving in to the urge early in the year in the hope that some good, however, small, will come from it. To many students, especially in Auckland, the University is a place, set up by a benevolent government, where they can attend lectures and pass exams. leading to a degree. This degree when obtained is nothing more than a plumber's certificatefi a trade card "Madam Chairman . . . leading to a profession. This is not the true University education, which can only be obtained in New Zealand at a place like Curious Cove Congress. Neither is it the best University education that can be obtained at this college.

A University education consists, in my opinion, of 50% swot, and 50% other activities. By other activities, I mean the joining of and active participation in, cultural clubs, sports' clubs, and the multifarious activities associated with the running of student life Executive.

A student who in his or her three or four years at College has not taken part in Capping Week activities, other than as a passive graduate, is not a university student at all. A student who has not at some stage actively participated in the programme of a University club, is not a University student at all. These people are attending a glorified night school.

I realise of course the difficulties experienced by many parttime students in finding time for these activities. However, I would point out that since the brunt of the work appears to be done by some part-timers, it is not too much to expect other part-timers to take a small part in University activities.

To ride a hobby horse a little nearer home, I now come to the subject of "Craccum." It is ridiculous to find that only six people in the whole University are interested in the production of your paper. The others apparently just sit back, look at an occasional issue and say "not bad," or "what rubbish," and make no attempt to help by contributions or constructive criticism. Students must accept their responsibilities. In accepting their responsibilities to get the balance of monies due them students will not lose by it. The experience gained in committee from A.U.C.S.A. by the recent agreework both of meeting procedure, and even more important, working with other people towards a common end is invaluable.

KIWI

More copy is needed urgently for "KIWI," 1953. Contributions of "KIWI," 1953. Contributions of prose, verse, etc., are required, as well as paintings, photos, etc., suit-able for reproduction. "KIWJ" is your annual publica-tion, and it depends upon you for its being. Any blushing young songsters may hide their lights beneath nom-de-plumes if they so desire. Escapist neo-surrealist, scream of conscience literature especially de-conscience literature especially desired.

Send in Send in your most astonishing effusions to the Editor, "KIWI," 1953, Exec. Room.—J.M.L.

Graduation Ball

B.S

presence of the Governor-General and Lady Norrie, in the Academic Dress at this function. block.

Thursday, May 7th, I

HA CONGRATULATIONS This week a large number of Graduands will be capped. The capping is generally accepted as an excuse for what has come No be known by the students as "Carnival Week," and by the Austers land public as "Those 'Varsity hoodlums being offensive doertisin Queen Street again." To the Grads we offer our sincere congractivitie lations; to those of the Auckland public who find our behavilerious undignified we reply that according to the daily press, their'she "E. not too dignified at times also; and beg them that they attempt These understand the students a little more.

We do not wish to be understood as exponents of obscent and mo but we do wish to point out that a University College such ms an Jub. Eva ours, can give much to the city in which it is situated. We as st ents have much to give the public; the public can help us in ret it. This by their whole-hearted support. It boils down, in fact, to got Chris hich th and take.

The Grads who are capped this week will be taking up implies incep tant positions throughout Auckland, in every sphere of the These ness and professional worlds. These are the people who will se the Bible our problems of law, teach our children and try to give so Word of explanation of the official income tax forms, to name but a few worthy. Word of Divinely the numerous duties they are about to take upon themselves. The R hope that our Grads this year will retain their interest in macle) College. To those who have regarded the College as a night-sclass on our commiserations; to those who have taken part in studiet 1 p activities during their years at 'Varsity, and made the most of these ar these are stimulating opportunities the university life offers, our kudos. • God i On behalf of the Student Association, "Craccum" offers year's Graduands our congratulations and best wishes for suc in the future.

EXECUTIVE MEETING, MONDAY.

CRACCUM

EXECUTIVE MEETING, MONDAY, APRIL 20th, 6.30 p.m. Present: Miss Spence (in chair), Mr. Connell; Misses Charleston and Solly; Messrs. Smith, Henry, Fraser, Frankovich, Lasenby, Lynch, Reilley, Wily, Flood, Saunders, and Mr. Piper, Student Rep. on College Council. Correspondence.—Outwards: A let-ter to the Secretary, College Council, included recommendations from Exec.

ter to the Secretary, Conege Council, included recommendations from Exec. re facilities for the Phys. Ed. wal-lah, Stan. Brown. It was recom-mended that No. 1 tennis court be asphalted and floodlit, and details of its use be placed in hands of Stan Brown Brown.

Brown. Stan's plans for the asphalting, lighting and use of the court may be viewed on the noticeboard in Exec. room. Provision is made for Basket-ball, Volleyball, Badminton, Padder-minton, Handball and Tennis. If completed, the scheme will give the college a first-class outdoor gymnacollege a first-class outdoor gymnasium.

Graduation Ball.-It is hoped that Grad Ball will be continued until 3 a.m. as in the past, and a letter was sent to the College Council request, ing this closing time.

ment.

The buck was passed to Brian Horton, Chairman of Procesh mittee, to prevent liquor taken "on or about or consum. Com mittee, t taken "on being consumed on floats participating in the 1953 Car-nival Procession."

A letter was received from the Registrar advising of the winner of the Student Memorial Scholarship To be held in the distinguished for 1952. A letter was sent to Mr. R. W. Bailey, congratulating him upon the award. Kevin Lynch gave notice of his ineral and Lady Norrie, in the College Hall at 8.15 p.m., Friday, 8th May. Important.—Note to Gradu-ates: Craduates must append their for the greet improvements the instance of the student their for the greet improvements the base ates: Graduates must wear their for the great improvements he has effected in the men's common room block. As a part-timer, Kevin has devoted almost all of his spare time to student welfare. The recent tion to Kevin's family has mat impossible for him to spend the on Exec. Good luck, Kevin, and thanks for a job well done! College Council Elections will held in June. Exec. reappointed Keith Piper as its representative passed a sincere vote of thank the work Mr. Piper has done on students' behalf since his app ment in 1950. ment in 1950. In one of those moments of u that does

In one of those moments of u mity, so rare to the Executive, Henry was congratulated for suck he displayed in the Drin Horn at Tournament, which won an N.Z.U. Drinking Blue. Cricket, Literary, Tramping, k national Relations, Women's Cre Rifles, Swords, Classical, Table Ta and Catholic Clubs and S.C.M. E.U. had their grants ratified, Following a long list of compi from the Cafeteria staff a set rules is to be formulated for nothing here which wish to use the Caf from the Cafeteria staff a set rules is to be formulated for clubs which wish to use the Cat. any of their functions. At 9.50 p.m., after an unus short meeting, members of arose and put their portfolios to Background music to this a ing was provided by Procesh i which was practising in the i

Common Room.

NOTE: At the time of publication editors of "Craccum" were still South Island. Come home. Jim Ed

hursda

• Jesus

which dis

(as distin

stand up

iny. Do y

work? equivocal

They've

t just a life not purpose-

have acte

lives wit

everishly

I submi

Come an meeting o p.m. and

hem. und th

wasted.

This What we hursday, May 7th, 1953

CRACCUM

7th, HATISTHEEU, ? CENSORSHIP and Responsibility

congractivities. What do these mys-

the b These things are found stated in will se the Bible which they believe is the ive se Word of God and (as originally given) Divinely inspired and entirely trustt a few worthy.

elves. The Rev. Pritchard (Baptist Tabst in st in emacle) has been taking a series of with "a moral" are preferred. Why tht-sch taks on these fundamentals in Room all this interference with the normal study at 1 p.m. on Thursdays. Included in course of expression that artists, ost of these are:

kudos • God is a Trinity and yet a Unity. ffers • All men have fallen short of God's or such prequirements.

Jesus Christ, God's Son, died for our sins on the cross. ·ecent made as mac nd the • Justification and Redemption possible only through personal Faith in Him as Saviour and Lord. 1, and m ns will What a lot of old fashioned ideas. pointed Irue! But the E.U. claims they are itative, neither out-of-date nor impractical. thank We know that some seem to think lone on ione on it is not fashionable to-day for an in-is app tellectual to believe these things, but that does not mean that they are un-interest cut and dried, ready for interest cut and dried, ready for assimilation in an approved form. Of course there really is no quar dary. Censorship, being the hand maiden of Authority, serves her mas easier to be intellectual cowards.

ping, h But fancy believing that the Bible n's Cr. is Divinely inspired! Why it is just 'able Te full of scientific errors and contra-S.C.M. dictions! Of course it's easy to dem-tified. Of and the supernatural. But given a set these axioms, I have as yet found for the other contradictory nor anything nothing contradictory nor anything for he Caf which disagrees with a scientific fact (as distinct from a theory) that will stand up to the light of careful scrutunus iny. Do you know of any? of

cesh

ublicat still

lim E

This is all negative, however. What we want to know is—does it work? The E.U. answers an un-equivocal "Yes." How do they know? They've tried it in their own lives. lios to this a the ! After all, what is the goal of life? Is there any purpose to existence? Is it just a gigantic combination of pure I just a gigantic combination of pure chance, or is there an underlying pur-pose? If there is, then surely any life not directed towards this is wasted. The E.U. claims there is a purpose—an objective—God. They have acted on this, and aligned their lives with God's revealed course for them. In this they claim to have found those things which men are feverishly seeking—iov. peace and feverishly seeking—joy, peace and satisfaction.

I submit to you as a thinking stud-ent that these things are fundamental importance to YOU.

Come and eat your lunch at the E.U. meeting on Thursdays in Room 2, at 1 p.m. and find out more of what and why zee believe.

-M. Ross Palmer.

s come No doubt you have seen the Aussters around the College ad- creature run from the cur? There thou mightest behold the great it to be condoned? ive doertising the "E.U." and its image of authority a docion have been the second oned?

theirshe "E.U."? Authority and censorship go ittemp These two letters stand for the rords "Evangelical Union," an awk-obscel and mouthful, which describes the such ims and objects of this 'Varsity e as stab. Evangelical means that the Club in references have a certain outlook on Authority and censorship go hand in hand; one usually can-not exist without the other. The extent to which authority of in references have a certain outlook on Authority and censorship go hand in hand; one usually can-not exist without the other. The extent to which authority of in references have a certain outlook on Authority and censorship go hand in hand; one usually can-not exist without the other. The extent to which authority of in references have a certain outlook on hand is to go unquestioned. hand in hand; one usually can-not exist without the other. The extent to which authority of hand is to go unquestioned. hand is to go unquestioned. hand in hand; one usually can-hand in hand; one us any kind is to go unquestioned, newspaper-purchasing public); and the nasy little backbite on the stud-and censorship allowed to go un- ents' floats about the mayor, must be Students.

> We are told that our procession must be censored. Capping Book is censored. "Craccum" is censored. Films and novels are censored. "Ex-purgated editions" abound and comics anarchists and students care to follow? Sex, sedition, and satire are put to us as deadly enemies; we must be protected from them. we

To anyone not convinced that "they know what's best — they, meaning the clerics, the civic fathers and the editors of newspapers—this solici-tous interference of censors in our lives must appear a little unnecessary. And if we do admit that "they know what's best" for us, are we not rather quitting our responsibilities as University students? It is surely one of the aims of an expensive education to equip a man to make his own decisions on questions of right and wrong and not have whole topics of for government and it has been true since ancient times. A history of suppres-sion accompanies every enduring political or religious system; Socrates was falsely accused of "corrupting the youth"; and of irreligion by his antagonists, the citizens in power, who could not bear his criticism. The Bornen Catholic Church admits that Roman Catholic Church admits that it is necessary to protect the faith-ful from heresy; it defends the black-listing of certain publications.

And to think a single socialistic thought, even within the ivory-towers of our Universities, to-day, will bring packs of red-hunting bloodhounds in on the telepathic trail.

stability after a change in power, that highly conservative measures that highly conservative measures essays. As a sculptor, he was sad-follows the most popular revolutions. dened by the sometimes conventional Russia's conservatism is notorious; regard of bodily functions as "dirty," Russia's conservatism is notorious; this lack of individual freedom in a revloutionary state is to be expected. (Recent changes in Soviet policy sur-

In a democracy, the government can theoretically be made to submit to the people's will. Accordingly, it will cultivate this goodwill assidu-ously, it will prepare the ground for the next election, and water with recocdile tears any seeds of discon- It is a natural accompaniment of any tent sown by an opposition party. conservative tendency, and its com-Christian ethics will always receive plete removal would result in an entry. Christian ethics will always receive plete removal would result in anarchy

e as stable. Evangelical means that the Club any Kind is to get and censorship allowed to go un-in return This is a belief in the principles and censorship allowed to go un-t, to got Christianity, those fundamentals opposed is a question of great relevance to us as University to the demands of either the "decent citizens" or the State. Is it a good thing?

Censorship and Art

Perhaps in Art it is most serious. them. To Gulley Jimson in Cary's "Horse's Mouth" art was anarchistic in pur-pose, good art should knock people so hard that they never recover their shattered senses. The other extreme is that decorative little landscape on the wall, pleasant, patronising; the pretty portrait, familiar and reaspretty portrait, familiar and reas-suring. The people who want things nice and traditional, are usually innice and traditional, are usually in-clined to sneer at the new and un-conventional; but that is an impor-tant point. The eventual triumph of James Joyce's "Ulysses" was the happy climax to a bitter fight against entrenched opinion on the question of what was moral or immoral, supporters of decoration against the artist. Real difficulty arises from attempts to resolve this personal problem of morality at a public level. public level.

Roberto Rosselini's widely acclaimed m, "The Miracle," has not reached film, Australasian audiences because it is Of course there really is no quan-allegedly heretical. But what of its dary. Cersorship, being the hand-maiden of Authority, serves her mas-ter; and her master repays her by permanently. Surely it is a sign of employing every means he has to weakness that we cannot allow it into defend her. This fact is apparent in our midst? Perhaps Jimson was right, the best are is our worst enemy.

Robert Close's book, "We were the Rats" got its publishers into Court because members of the Tobruk gar-rison indulged in a spot of porno-graphic reading. Who said it was pornographic? A police constable. The Court believed him. The book was withheld from the public, and pornography became a fashionable word. Millions of children were not led astray.

bur Universities, to-day, will "Clothes," says Eric Gill, "are the can never be condoned is any attempt best aphrodisiac." Nudity calms the by force to prevent certain views wanton, just as clothing excites the being stated or questions from being prudish. Gill, who was a lay-member discussed.—R.G.E. or of sex as shameful. His know-ledge, which shines through his art, is surely worth all the lukewarm opinions of those who would protect prise because they taste of liberal-ism, and they incur suspicion because man from himself. It is not so much concessions can be made only from a that censorship in art is militantly position of strength). and anaemic.

d for Censorship of some kind or other with is inevitable in a changing society.

As members of a University, we should be proud of our freedom to discuss popular as well as academic issues, with greater possibility of enlightenment than the man in the street. The academic tradition is one of free enquiry, not one of deducing infallible facts, or incontrovertible conclusions; and the success of our efforts here may be measured by the degree to which we can treat the problems we meet to free discussion rather than by measurement against entrenched and subborn conviction.

This open-mindedness on conten-This open-mindedness on conten-tious issues, and an ability to think rather than be pushed should char-acterise us; we should be aware of the forces of conventionality and commercialism, whatever our attitude to

Of course no man is free of prejudices, and loyalties are honoured. We may very reasonably be prejudiced for instance, in favour of the Monarchy, or the Mormons, and frown on any slight in that direction. But an argument in defence of our personal views should carry some rec-ognition of the justice of an oppos-ing case; insofar as an issue permits it we should seek the truth. How-ever, sophistical and verbal argu-ment is hard to avoid and we usually ever, sophistical and verbal argu-ment is hard to avoid, and we usually accept the refuge it offers when a discussion discloses some ill-founded prejudice.

As far as Procesh, and Capping Book are concerned, where we accept censorship because we agree to give a certain impression outside the university, we should try to give as fair an impresison as we can. For instance political censorship is ridiculous, as Universities are trad ally sites of political battles, traditionand active differences of opinion should not be glossed over.

not be glossed over. With other people, University stud-ents accept most of the conventions of their society, like vitamins and chlorophyll. Their particular respon-sibility is to drive all those who would make inroads on individual or public freedom back to the facts and the points a tissue. Past the slogans and popular heresies, past the misrepre-senting press and the sensational headlines, past fawning super-egos in high places: right back to the facts in high places; right back to the facts and their deepest faith. Then they and their deepest faith. Then they may dissuade the frightened bully in authority, and the self-satisfied pun-dit of cultural standards.

Thursday, May 7th, 1953

CRACCUM

Page ursday

EVI

easts whi nd A. H. ot a cha sociated any yea andard ki," or onymou errin-Jo an elab is revue was pro become s a writ ng "Sord Mr. Co riginal Size Thr cal comed orists, wh but a fina uch talk scored h Crown P

aided in loan of 70 quis of N

Drunken

author as

Quiet on a financia tests tha

nearly al had becc

comedy. "The G

topical f numbers

pard's be in the hi R. F. Sp

1933 v

lege, an perience

the last

literatur

terned o tained th

Star" n introduc is) won

the slig

1934 pard's 1

in view

financial

for the made to 1936, pr

instead

"Revue,

intimate plays an

written cle wit Joseph,

Spragg

"Revue, were by

produced rememb

'Words

the cel written "Man A

In 19

mating," written by L. T. Pickn The pie and T. P. Hull. This was rather a musical fa ambitious than earlier efforts, 1928, the ambitious than earlier efforts, 1928, the contained much music, including a maki" and choruses.

In 1906, there was an attempt Sparling. more comprehensive Carnival. scored h more comprehensive Carnival. celebration took the form of a as usual, in this case "When Was Young," by L. T. Pickmere Grecian musical play," but after came a burlesque of the more h ilar type. The lampoons on occasion were directed against opponents of the College Coun plan to take over the Metropa site for the University. Unfon ately, "Kiwi" tells us, both were so long that the entertain ately, "Kiwi" tells us, both were so long that the entertain did not finish "until after the had ceased to run." Plus ca chang For some years after this the ents relied on professional such as "Engaged," "Cox and and "How He Lied to Her Hush for Capipng Social. In 1912 Association staged an amb In 1912 Carnival with a burlesque repla the play, and with the first Car Ball concluding the celebrations.

Ball concluding the celebrations. Ted Kavanagh's extravagu "Kapinga-Ra and the Ngati-Pr was the main event of 1913, with Kavanagh himself giving an lent imitation of James Parr, Mayor Auckland. The follor year's revue, entitled "Pandemons was written and performed by sons unknown. During the war years such the

During the war years such the Carnival plays were susper were most of the other activities the Students' Association. as of the Students' Association. in 1920, the modern type of mestablished itself firmly with appearance of L. P. Leary's now endary piece, "The Bolshie." sound plot, the witty dialogue skilful lyrics of this revue have its memory green up to the pre dav. "The Bolshie" was followe "Bill Stoney" (1921) and "The garian Bug" (1922). The latter is said to have killed the gastron cal fad of the same name in A of cal fad of the same name in A land. "Come Down the Harbour Me" and other still popular Co songs date from these plays. A deal of the success of these A revues resulted from their exce

Continued on Page 5

CARNIVAL COMMITTEE

CHAIRMAN	Dixon Reilley
SECRETARY	John Storry
PUBLICITY
REVUE	Charles Zambucka
PROCESSION	Brian Horton
CAPPING BOOK .	Gerald Utting
PROCESSION	COMMITTEE
Procesh Controller	Brian Horton
Secretary	Jenny Cooke
Traffic Controller	Neville Wallace
Collection

Materials Don Watson Band Leader Dick Mercer Credit: Our thanks to Dr. John Wright, for helpful advice and support ...

"SEIZE ME CAESAR"

(or) "No Place Like Rome." Written and produced by CHARLES ZAMBUCKA.

Music arranged and directed by Michael Corban Ballets by _____ Da Katipa Sets designed by James Turkington CAST

CAST Eileen Johnston, Diana Brabant, Peter Salmon, Brian Crimp, Rose-mary Larkin, Alan Julian, Terry Mc-Namara, Joan Reilley, Susan Davis, Ramsay Simpson, Norman Butler, Ross Mathieson, Jill Evans, Murga-ret Lorrigan, Joanne McIntosh, Denis Pain, John Young, Ian Whiteside, Frank Davis, Dixon Reilley, Denise Paul. Paul.

HANDMAIDENS, etc.: Judith Henderson, Jennifer Hamilton, Mar-garet Stevenson, Margaret Orbell, Janice Jillett, Pam Douglas.

CITIZENS, etc.: Don Watson, Bill Gawn, Gerald Utting, Chris McNeill, Carl Stead.

Ladies of BALLET: Rosemary Smee-ton, Yvonne Tootell, Diane Linton, Mary McNaughton, Yvonne Blenner-hasset, Barbara Whitman, Barbara Johnson, Eileen Coxhead, Wynne Clark, Heather Patersson, Pip Fil-lery, Elice Moore, Ina Bowman, Ter-esa Lennare esa Lennare.

Gentlemen of the BALLET: Dean Gentlemen of the BALLET: Dean Walker, Dietz van Vessen, Jim Hire, Arthur Young, John Russell, Tony Crisp, Ian McIldowie, Jim McFar-land, Garry Tea, Neil Doull, Michael Morris, Dave Thompson, Denis Howell, Doug Monteith, Pill Palmer, Bob Sinclair, Charlie Storry. Stage Supervisor Dick Messenger Stage Manager Laurie Colebrook Costumes Ann Letford. Costumes Assistant Producer Ann Letford Ann Ballin Properties Manager ... Ryland Johnson Business Manager Dick Greedus

This year we have 15,000 capping books to sell. We can do this easily, the only difficulty being to distribute them fairly amongst the many thousands of Aucklanders who eagerly await this chance of giving 2/- towards the expenses of the Carnival. But we must have your help. Take some from 'Varsity the after-noon before and sell them in your local and/or locality on Procesh morning. Books will be given out at Univer-sity the day before Procesh, Wednes-day, 6th May, and more will be avail-able from O'Rorke the University and Books will be given out at Univer-sity the day before Procesh, Wednes-day, 6th May, and more will be avail-able from O'Rorke, the University and Queen Street booths on the day of Procesh.

((1))

Sellers will be given a receipt when they obtain the books. This will be stamped and their names recorded when money is handed in at the Na-tional Bank (corner Shortland Street and Uich Street) and High Street). Hand that money in early. The art of extracting money from the Auck-land public is an easy and enjoyable selling books and in maintaining the high opinion in which the University is held by the public.

1110111

• BUT BE FIRM.

• CHOOSE YOUR VICTIMS — People with time on their hands — taxi drivers, people waiting for trans-port, people on trams and ferries, people watching the procession but remember that anyone is worth trving

WORK O'Rorkians worked last year in groups with a large number of Capping Books

EARLY—There will be a special teller at the National Bank (corner of High Street and Shortland Street). DRESS UP AND SELL CAPPING

The annual Revue of the Auckland University College has a long history, and many earlier Capping plays were written by various men later to distinguish themselves in the world of letters. Perhaps the best known of the writers of A.U.C. revues is Ted Kavanagh, the creator of ITMA, whose extravanganza, "The Kavanagh, the creator of ITMA, whose extravanganza, "The Legend of Kapinga-Ra and the Ngati-Phois" was presented in 1912.

Indeed so far as the records tell us, this was the first revue approxi-mating to the contemporary type which the College performed. Before that, entertainments of various kinds had been presented in connection with Capping. The first organized Capping celebration seems to have been in 1892, in which year the Stud. Association had several songs printed for singing, at a social evening. Grad-uation Social took clearer shape in 1898, and henceforth it became the custom to produce some kind of or-custom to produce some kind of or-ganized entertainment for the new graduates, including, from 1901, a play of about one-act length. The earlier Graduation Social con-sisted usually of a demonstration of the works of the College, the singing of topical songs composed by stud-CREDITS Our grateful thanks to Ian Seddon, Bill Sayers, Wal Armstrong, Peter Rider for set construction. In 1902, the Graduation Social included a burlesque College Council meeting. Mr. Bamford, as chairman of this distinguished company, exe-cuted a Highland Fling on the coun-cil table, while Mr. F. Sinclaire (later Professor Sinclaire) as the Registrar, achieved most artistic success of the evening in the sing-ing of the minutes. The play of the year was called "Sappho," written by H. Dean Bamford, which contained some topical songs. some topical songs.

The same year, incidentally, saw the first Procession. Disaster overthe first Procession. Disaster over-took this effort in Karangahape Road, where it was broken up by hooligans. In the words of Mr. A. B. Thompson, "the members of the Procession re-tired in as much order as was pos-sible, followed by a yelling rabble which inflicted considerable damage upon the windows when it reached the University Buildings." The Play for 1903 was "A Proxi(y)

TOGETHER Some

in a pack. • HAND IN YOUR MONEY BOOKS!

EVUES REVIEWED Contd. from Page 4

hd A. H. H. Fryer-Raisher (a person, ot a character), who were to be asociated with Varsity revues for may years to come. In 1925 a new andard was set by "Tilly of Tam-hi," or "The Lost Heiress," by an nonymous author (Professor J. C. perrin-Johnson). A musical comedy an elaborate type, akin to "Sally," his revue. made a profit of over £300. t was produced by J. A. S. Coppard, o become well known in later years s a writer of serious plays, includ-ng "Sordid Story." Mr. Coppard presented his first

Mr. Coppard presented his first original revue in 1926. This was "Size Three," a fairly straight musi-"Size Three," a fairly straight musi-cal comedy dealing with racing mot-orists, which was "an artistic success but a financial failure." There was much talk of "apathy" in those days. Pick The piece for 1927 was J. Dumble's ather musical farce, "Crooks, Ltd.", and in fforts, 1928, the inevitable sequel to "Tilly of Iding transki" made its appearance. "Tilly in the City" was written by the an-4 was ronymous author of the original play, to bee and was produced by Kenneth Auck Brampton, a professional producer, journ on a most elaborate scale. This play was a huge success, with record "A Mod houses, and netted a profit of £450, edietta" which in those days, was a profit.

"A Moj houses, and netted a pront of $400, edietta" which in those days, was a profit. Int play St. James' Theatre was the scene id to b of the 1929 revue, "The King of les to Kawau," by J. Nigel Wilson and Dr. ies to Kawau," by J. Nigel Wilson and Dr. J. C. Andrews, with music by Trevor tempt Sparling. A. H. Fryer - Raisher ival. scored his biggest success as the of a Crown Prince of Kawau, who was When i aided in his endeavours to raise a kmere ioan of 70 million pounds by the Mar-after quis of Mount Eden and the Duke of pounder Bay Drunken Bay. nore

S

ation.

e of a with

's now nie.'

logue

have ;he pr

ollowe "The latter e in A

in A rbour 1 ar Co 7s. A hese t r exce : 5

In 1930, Mr. Coppard became author as well as producer with "All Quiet on the Waterfront." This was on gainst Cout a financial success, but it led to pro-tests that University revues had lost nearly all their topical character, and had become allost letropoli Unfor oth put had become almost straight musical had become almost straight musical comedy. Thus "Frenzy" (1931), and "The Goat's Train" (1932) were topical farces with scattered musical numbers only. The latter play, Cop-pard's best revue, and one of the best in the history of the College, included R. F. Spragg in the cast. the tr a chang is the onal and Husba 1912 ambi

1933 was Jubilee year for the Colreplaist Cam lege, and for the students' part of the celebrations, "Jubilade" was lege, and for the students' part of the celebrations, "Jubilade" was written by J. A. Mulgan, author of "Man Alone" and "Report on Ex-perience." John Mulgan's death in the last yar was a great loss to our literature. His clever revue, pat-terned on Coward's "Cavalcade," con-tained the celebrated "'Erald and the "Cava" unpher which B. F. Surage itions. gati-Pi 3, with an Parr, follo demon Star" number, which R. F. Spragg introduced and was (and perhaps still is) wont to sing in after years on ed by such th the slightest provocation. suspe

1934 was a bad year with Cop-pard's lifeless "Dudless Debit," and in view of depression conditions and financial loss, Revue was abandoned for the following year. A move was made to revive the annual revue in 1936, presenting it in the College Hall instead of a city theatre. This "Revue, 1936," took the form of an intimate revue with short burlesque plays and sketches. This effort was written by the compiler of this arti-cle with assistance from M. K. Joseph, and was produced by R. F Spragg. The two successive revues, "Revue, 1937," and "Revue, 1938," were by the same author, who also produced. Some pieces which may be remembered from these years were "Words and Moujics," "The Asbes-asts which included J. A. S. Coppard tos of Stupides," "Saust," "Ohello," Id A. H. H. Fryer-Raisher (a person, ot a character), who were to be associated with Varsity revues for revues to come in 1025 and Van Holder and Cleuston, who first appeared in 1936, and Van Holder and Alan Gifkins in 1937, were to continue to be indispensable in revue for some years. 1937 saw the first large-scale ballet such as has since become traditional.

The financial success of these years and the goodwill built up embold-ened the Association to return to a Queen Street theatre, and 1939 saw the beginning of the Zabucka saga, with "Bled-White and the Seven Wharfies," written and produced by C. Zambucka and featuring David Clouston, Alan Gifkins, Van Hodder and the talented Bill Singer, later killed in action. "Hell Hath no Fueh-rer" (1940), and "East of Sewers" (1941), which dealt in the character-istic Zambucka neo-superrealist manner with current affairs, were both popular and financial successes. The financial success of these years both popular and financial successes.

both popular and financial successes. The development of the war led/to the abandonment of all the celebra-tions traditionally associated with Capping until 1946, when "This Slap-Happy Brewed," by C. Zambucka, and with Gifkins, Hodder and Clous-ton was performed. "Smellbound" (1947), which followed, brought the Zambucka opera to an end. This series, written in a witty style and with most involved and stream-of-consciousness plots gained a great with most involved and stream-of-consciousness plots gained a great deal of their success from the pro-ducing hand of the author and the performances of a nucleus of experi-enced players. The lyrics written by Bill Singer for the earlier pieces showed unusual ability. "The Road to Ruin" (1948), written by John Kelly and produced by Van Hodder followed the lines of the more recent revues rather than of the Hodder followed the lines of the more recent revues rather than of the earlier style, but showed consider-able individuality of treatment. There is a strong tradition of revue at this College which has developed a style completely its own. The tradi-tion of a single long play with musi-cal numbers began many years ago, and despite same variants this has remained the dominant form and is remained the dominant form and is likely to continue thus until public

Inkely to continue thus until public interest shows signs of falling off. It is interesting to note in "Kiwi" and "Craccum" almost any year in the past the reviewer complains that the piece is not worthy of the Col-lege, that the standard is falling off, that the acting is most uneven, that the play shows signs of hasty rehear. the play shows signs of hasty rehear-sal, that the revue is not as good as it has been. The conclusion one can draw is that it never was. J. C. Reid

J. C. Reid Revue was written in 1949 by Mike Allen. In 1950, John Gundry pro-duced an amended form of J. C. Reid's "Crude and High." This revue, or the supposed behaviour of the students who acted in it, raised one of the greatest furores in the history of College revues. The City Council, in all its righteousness, banned the use of the Concert Chamber for future of the Concert Chamber for future revues. The ban was lifted after much losing of face by the Student Executive. Much bad publicity was Executive. Much bad publicity was given to the Student Association over this affair, and yet none of the evi-dence was actually proven, indeed it seems to-day that much of it was pure fabrication. The same year, Capping Book was banned. 1950 saw Auckland hypocrisy at its heights. In 1951. Dick Dennant wrote and produced "Private Views." A review which appeared in "Craccum" was attacked by Mr. Dennant in a verse reply in the next issue.

News Release:

O'Rorke Cleans Up Trinity

In a secret raid, details of which are still suppressed for Security Reasons, O'Rorke Hall sent a detach-ment of commandos against Trinity Hall on the evening of March 31st. The moon was low. Unconfirmed rumours from a reliable source state that the raiders forced the tower and flew their standard from the flagpole. However, under the threat of black-shirt reinforcements, they later withdrew to prepared positions. Another detachment was detailed to storm a stairhead on the main invasion route, and were almost successful, but the superior fire power of the enemy from strong points in the hills slowed down the acvance. Eye-witness' accounts of the hydrogen-oxide bomb which was used extensively in the operation testify to its enormous des-

Last year Alan Gordon produced a straight play, "The Beaux Strata-gem," by George Farquhar. Attendgem," by George Farquhar. Attend-ances improved at this play, but it seems a pity to depart from the Revue tradition. Like its predecessor, the 1952 Revue play was taken on tour, this time to Rotorua, where it played to a packed house. A pro-cession was held through Rotorua-before the play, giving some excel-lent poulicity. This year, ZAMBUCKA returns to the tradition with a brand-new and entirely original revue, based largely entirely original revue, based largely upon Auckland's lack of certain amenities. "Craccum" has no doubt that "Zam" will do the trick and bring some red blood to the series of bring some red blood to the series of revues which have been noticeably thin over recent years. We can heart-ily recommend "Seize Me Caesar"— we have been attending the odd re-hearsal ourselves, and if the cast act with half the energy and keenness that "Zam" puts into his producing, then "Seize Me Caesar" should put Aughlend right on its cart - I M L Auckland right on its ear!-J.M.L.

tructive power, although, curiously enough, personnel can apparently be trained to withstand any perma-nently harmful effects of the hydro-gen-oxide molecules. Our military correspondent is of the opinion that it was only a superior stockpile of this strategic material that allowed Trinity to turn back the assault; how-ever political observers consider it ever, political observers consider it was the "get tough" attitude of Trinity's Prime Minister that weakened the O'Rorke drive.

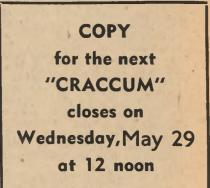

As this is the first account of the use of the hydrogen-oxide bomb, the following observations (which have not been confirmed) on its effects may

Determination of the checks may be of interest:
Extremely wet film forms over horizontal surfaces.
A remarkable increase in humidity

 A remarkable international internatione international international international international inter cation.

It is clear that control of this veapon is easier than the hydrogen bomb.

A later report that Trinity is seek-ing certain reparations from O'Rorke, has yet to be confirmed.

REMEMBER?

Page 6

FEAR STALKS II KENYA

CRACCUM

For some time now the problems associated with the Mau-Mau outbreak in Kenya have been receiving more and more space in the news columns of the world's press. The usual hunt for the is no reason to despair or think that scapegoat is now on, and at the moment the white settlers in solution is impossible because a set-Kenya and the United Kingdom Colonial Secretary are equal fav- back has been experienced in Kenya. ourites for this dubious award. Every age has its obsessions, and Nor on the other hand is it wise to the 20th contuny is no evention to the general wile. This is the claim that the Africans are capable the 20th century is no exception to the general rule. This is the of se the 20th century is no exception to the general rule. This is the age in which colonialism, no matter how enlightened, is considered a moral wrong, and the excesses of any outbreak such as Mau-Mau are excused on the grounds that the coloured peoples in the areas concerned have been maltreated by the resident white set-tlers or overlooked by the home government.

tlers or overlooked by the home g In such cases the great change in attitude to the African which has taken place in the last decade, the realisation that what he wants is primarily freedom from poverty, and the numerous practical attempts to work with him as a partner albeit subordinate for the time being, are conveniently ignored. Instead the self-styled leaders of reform indulge in an orgy of hysterical abuse, mur-murings about racial equality, and vague talk about self-government. Certainly the supreme objective of Certainly the supreme objective of British Colonial policy should be the ultimate attainment of self-govern-ment in Kenya but not at the high ment in Kenya but not at the high price of bringing about the destruc-tion of the other benefits bestowed by a benevolent colonial administration. Besides, surely self-government in Kenya poses a series of problems that yet have to be solved. Kenya is a plural society; a plural society in which the minority group is by far the more capable of self-government than the large and primitive majority. the more capable of self-government than the large and primitive majority. Furthermore although there should be equality of opportunity for the two races to claim that the two races are equal now is just plain stupidity. The African leaders have to prove themselves worthy of the responsi-bility placed upon them. There can be no hope of political advance in Kenya unless the Africans show themselves fit and able to exercise the power entrusted to them in accordance with the rule of law, and civilised practice.

civilised practice. Kenyan Tragedy The tragedy of Kenya is that the Mau-Mau outbreak has shown that Mau-Mau outbreak has shown that the African still has a lot to learn. The Kenyan Africans—especially the Kikuyu—have plenty of grievances, some of which are very real. But their leaders should have known that there is no average for terrorism. The their leaders should have known that there is no excuse for terrorism. The Mau-Mau has revealed itself as an evil mixture of primitive savagery and gangsterism. It is widespread, well-organised and has been building up its strength for the past two years. It has assassinated fine old men like Senior Chief Waruhiu, of Kiambu. It has murdered many more natives than whites. Apart from the more mundane cause of the unrest, what has really shaker the white settlers is the wide and deep gulf that has been revealed shakes the white settlers is the wide and deep gulf that has been revealed between European and some African minds. What is the hold that the Mau-Mau oath has on the Kikuyu? What is there about this oath that forces the Kikuyu into committing the most horrible of crimes? No white man seems to know. But its power cannot be doubted. It is this that has driven a liberal-minded man like Mr. Michael Blundell, the acknow-ledged political leader of the white ledged political leader of the white settlers, to the reluctant conclusion that "reforms" are not, at any rate for the time being. the answer to Mau-Mau. His explanation is that the Kikuyu have been compelled to assimilate 2000 years of Western ideas and progress in 50 years, and their minds have suddenly rebelled .- ment of the land, and above all the

Despite what the white settlers say however, there are certain con-crete causes of the unrest along with the ones described above. The Kikuyu who take no active part in Mau-Mau attacks, but who give the Mau-Mau gangs at least passive support, for example, by concealing their where-abouts and supplying them with food are not just terrorised into doing so abouts and supplying them with food are not just terrorised into doing so. The Mau-Mau gets a degree of Kikuyu sympathy which is not entrely born of fear. Indeed there can be little doubt that most of the Kikuyu believe the whites stole their land. Although it is quite easy in most cases to prove that this is not so, what matters most is that this belief is tenaciously held. And be-cause of a rapid increase in Kikuyu population, the native reserves are population, the native reserves are overcrowded. This overcrowding is greatly aggravated by the wholesale eviction of Kikuyu "squatters" from eviction of Kikuyu "squatters" from white farms. The evicting farmers say that they have no option, but many disagree with this policy. This shortage of land plus the inefficiency of the average Kikuyu farmer is un-doubtedly causing considerable dis-tress and should be treated as the most urgent problem. The other problem is of a more long - term nature. It is the political problem which, according to Mr. Blundell, is incapable of solution in the forsee-able future.

their minds have suddenly rebelled. ment of the land, and above all the The Mau-Mau, he feels, is sheer opportunities to become civilised atavism. If he should be right, it points a rather disturbing conclu-sion for other parts of Africa. In any case the Europeans cannot be ex-pected to let control pass into the hands of a gang of witch doctors and cut-throats. Despite what the white settlers say however, there are certain con-crete causes of the unrest along with the conserved described above The Viluum? few thousand white people are fight-ing a war of ambush that could coning a war of ambush that could con-ceivably set the whole of Africa ablaze. They must be helped in their struggle, but they must also appre-ciate that their justice must be tempered by understanding. To eradi-cate the Mau-Mau is not enough, it must be given no opportunity to return return.

-John A. Stewart.

NOTHING

In 1892, and has been holding revues and processions ever since (with lamentable but short interruptions). And each time its labours have not been for itself alone, but for the fin-ancial gain of somebody else's health camp or somebody else's mem-orial fund. And over the same time, just how much money has been willof the average Kikuyu farmer is un-doubtedly causing considerable dis-tress and should be treated as the most urgent problem. The other problem is of a more long - term nature. It is the political problem which, according to Mr. Blundell, is incapable of solution in the forsee-able future. A Challenge It is one of the greatest political challenges of our generation to see

Independent Interlectual Inday,

Thursday, May 7th,

Last Friday saw the opening new era in the University, with inaugural meeting of the Societ Independent Intellectuals. Thoug students of this college have felt a need for some means of thoughtful, and now at last this ilimb, is filled. The S.I.I. has as its in umphar diate aim the inculcation in all ents of the lost art of independent thought, and with the restoration of this extra-curriclar thinking to the moirs of lives of students, the apathy tow for Hun College activities at present must vanish. This is of course one of many immediate berow which will result from the form one of many immediate be which will result from the form which will result from the form of the Society. Already the Society enjoys a amount of support; more tha Cl students had previously signerERILY, petition for the formation of Society; and 50 turned up to to society; and 50 turned up to to augural meeting. Of these, 30 most encouraging start.

now enrolled as members. Thi most encouraging start. Business discussed at the meeting was: the Constitution, was accepted by all members, election of officers. These President: L. M. Delves; Sect n a wr D. Long; Chairman: J. C. Bu Treasurer; Miss Anne Spindlay and with acclamation et amore impreand with acclamation). Students wishing to join the ety may do so by applying, pe ally, or in writing to the Secre L. M. Delves, Descident

SKIING 195 For a

For people who consider it find looke slide down mountains on skis, 7. When many cases unavodiably on pan his com their anatomy, the A.U.C. Ski fer thee is this year running four trips pan the k snow-fields. snow-fields:

(1) June 26th-28th. (2) July 8th-12th 8th-12th (Mid - break).

(4) After the Internal Lones," th Exams in November. Imost as These trips will be to Nar 9. Wom-Park and accommodation will hee, and r Mt. Ruapehu. Transport, on a rith an e cept the fourth trip, will be by a sast have coach. A Slalom and a Downhill Race be run during the Mid-Term trip for those who are interest trying for the A.U.C. ski Tean the Winter Tournament at Mt mont in August. The team was selected from those entering races.

It is to be strongly recommen all the that those who intend going a usband i this year should attend Mr. Brown's Keep Fit classes, and if Brown's Keep Fit classes, and if sible to concentrate on leg stre-ening exercises. By doing this will get much fuller enjoyment your skiing holiday, as you will be plagued so much by stiff mu after your first day's skiing. Do not let the fact that you never before have been skiing you. Ruapehu is the ideal place beginners—good nursery slopes a sympathetic instructor in Shorty Clarkin, who runs the mers' classes. For the more adu ski-ers Mr. Larry Frost and Harvey Clifford will be there to you swinging in those Christ you swinging in those Christ turns.

Finally, to those who are con Finally, to those who are co skiing this year, we advise yout in early when the trip lists go a the Ski Club notice board outsite Cafeteria at the beginning of term. If the demand exceeds accommodation available it will the four in the term the tril the lawn 7. He the back the first in that go on the trips.

butler in 5. When he, the y to dim a

M. Delves, President, Stall run r wrant lo

all answ nd a glad good as 8. Yea, hop, sayir ones," th

(3) August 15th-21st.

amily sha thing!" 10. The ou finde hine idea heer. 11. For ough sh A PER one? For bonds.

2. The him. and ouragem

3. He hands an hekels 4. He fetcheth lighteth t onsidere occasiona 5. Six our for h ful suppl vegetable enth doe for relax 6. With

8. He 9. He

THANKS FOR

"... our Association was founded in 1892, and has been holding revues ectualusday, May 7th, 1953.

CRACCUM

Page 7

XCLUSIVE - - Almost STORMWARNINGS pening y, with Societ Thoug have ins of rom the Faculty of Theology, idents great personal danger to life st this limb, we have now emerged its mphant, and are proud to in all sent, expressly for the readindeper of this high-class paper, the storatio the moirs of Old Man Solomon's thy to en Hundred and Second Wife The Wisdom of Mrs. Solocourse te e form

The Book of Husbands joys a

CHAPTER ONE th re sign FERILY, my daughter, an husband of st is a Good Thing. He giveth the to th ase a "finished" look, even as a 3, 30 ber plant and a door-plate. n of s p to th se,

This He suggesteth ready money and an adornment like unto a potted the

when he sitteth beside thee in tabernacle he is a certificate; yea, ution, embers These the eyes of society, he is be m a written recommendation. he is better Sec C

Bu , Verily, he is as necessary unto pindlay inanii e impressive than cut flowers and butter in livery. in the 5. When he taketh thee abroad to ing, peine, the waiter shall not lead thee te Secret dim and draught o dim and draughty corners, but Il run nimbly and place thee in a size spot within hearing of the lves dent, S.

95 6. For a lone woman in a great resurant looketh pitiful; but an hus-skis, 7. When thou goest unto an hotel on pan his company, the clerk shall not C. Ski fer thee a room that looketh out trips on the backyard; and the bellboys all answer thy ring with flying feet and a glad smile. For a husband is (Mid - good as much credit.

Jourant looketh pitiful; but an huser it f and looketh a real tip.
 8. Yea, when thou goest forth to op, saying, "Send this thing to Mrs. nal De mes," the clerk shall treat thee invost as an equal.

be mes," the clerk shall treat thee imost as an equal. Nat 9. Women shall not gossip about ill ee, and men shall come into thy teas n a th an easy mind, knowing thou by must have no designs upon them. Thy mily shall call thee "settled," and Raa o woman shall call thee "Poor mining!" to will , on a be by m ill Race o wo hing! Ferm nteres 10. Therefore, I say unto thee, if hou findest thine husband less than hine ideal, weep not but be of good Team at Mt. eam w 11. For what profiteth it a woman, ering hough she have every other luxury ecomm n all the world, and have not a little oing Mr. usband in her home?

CHAPTER TWO

and i ng.

at

g str me? For his price is far above gold onds. A PERFECT husband, who can find ng this yment

2. The heart of his wife rejoiceth in him, and he shall have no lack of entiff m ouragement. vou

He worketh willingly with his skiing hands and bringeth home all his l plac slopes hekels.

4. He riseth without calling and fetcheth the milk from the gate. He lighteth the fires about the house. He considereth his wife, and kisseth her s the be re adv t an here and occasionally.

Chris 5. Six days of the week doth he labour for his moneys and for a bountiful supply of foodstuffs from out his are co regetable garden, and upon the sev-enth doeth chores within the house for relaxation. e you: ts go : outside

6. With his own hands he runneth the lawn mower and washeth the dog. 7. He hooketh his wife's dresses up ng of a it will the back, without mutterings. e trips.

8. He putteth the cat out by night.
 9. He is not afraid of the cook.

10 His ashes fall not upon the carpet, and his cigarette burneth not holes in the polish of the side-table. 11. He weareth everlasting socks seweth on his own buttons. 12. His overcoat doeth him two seasons.

Yet, when he ventureth abroad 13.

with his wife he donness. Con without grumbling. 14. The grouch knoweth him not and his breakfast always pleaseth to him. His mouth is filled with praises ma from his wife's cooking. He doth not not for his wife's cooking. He doth not expect chicken salad from left-over veal, neither the making of lobster patties from an hambone. 15. His wife is known within the gates, when she sitteth among the officers of her Club, by the fit of her the gowns and her imported hats. luncheth meagrely upon a sandwich that he may adorn her with fine continually under fire from the oppo-jewels. He grumbleth not at the sition parties for alleged subservibills

16. He openeth his mouth with praises and noteth her new frock. And the word of flattery is on his tongue. 17. He perceiveth not the existence other women. of letter.

19. Lo, many men have I met in the world, but none like unto him. 20. Yet have ye all seen him—in your dreams!

CHAPTER THREE

GO to the lemon groves, oh, thou Sholarette! For no woman with brains hath ever plucked a peach in the Garden of Matrimony. 2. Nay, it is not given unto woman to possess both real ability and a real husband.

3. For unto a successful woman an husband is but an adjunct; and no man yearneth to be an annex! 4. Alas! He preferreth soft, sweet things, and unto him a woman that knoweth her own mind is an abomination. 5. Verily, verily, a woman with nerves affecteth a man as a mosquito the buzzeth throughout a summer She wearieth him. night.

6. But a woman with nerves is as salt. a cold bath on a winter morning. She shocketh him!

cold bath on a winter morning. She nocketh him! 7. Lo, an intelligent opinion in the thee and let thine heart be comforted. outh of a woman horrifieth a man ren as the scissors in the mouth of yet lemonade is not to be despised; mouth of a woman horrifieth a man even as the scissors in the mouth of a

IN JAPAN Despite General MacArthur's claim that Japan has become the new peace-loving democracy of the Pacific; despite his claim that the American way of life has been absorbed by the Japanese people; and despite his claim that constitutional self-government would work smoothly and efficiently in the land of Nippon, all is certainly not well in these American sponsored islands in April, 1953. The recent general election with all its bitterness and abuse, and above all its inconclusive result, is symptomatic of the internal stresses and strains which exist in that unhappy country. These internal party struggles are highly significant for international relations in the Pacific.

The immediate cause of the res-ignation of Mr. Yoshida's government and the consequent election was a split in the Liberal party, which had retained at the previous elections a clear although reduced majority. Indeed it had been able to resume office without entering into a coalition with without entering into a coalition with any of the parties of the opposition. The results of this week's election, however, cannot even claim that dis-tinction for Mr. Yoshida. This time the Liberal party won 199 seats, the biggest return of any single party, but five of the opposition parties and the Liberal party rebels wor a total Liberal party rebels won a total the of 267 seats. It seems certain at the time of writing that Mr. Yoshida will refuse office under these circum-stances, but what ever happens with his wife he donneth a dress suit Japan now faces a period of political without grumbling.

Although the conflicts which lead to a split in the Liberal party, are mainly of a personal nature and do not reveal any clear issue of prin-ciple, the malcontents have chosen in Dair efforts to eventhere Mr. Yosh their efforts to overthrow Mr. Yosh-ida, occasions involving strong cur-rents of popular feeling. Mr. Yosh-ida was unfortunate enough to hold Her office under the American occupa-He tion authorities, and ever since Japan regained her sovereignty he has been than a pet parrot which saith the appropriate thing at the right mom-ent. She appalleth him!

9. My daughter, in all the land dost thou know of one clever woman who

18. He may be trusted to mail a hath been happily married? tter. 10. Nay! For I say unto thee there can be but one mind, one opinion, and one throng in an household; and every man claimeth these for himself. 11. Then, oh, thou Temperamental One, whatsoever thou receivest in the love game, accept it gladly and rejoice thereat.

12. For, whether it be a babe torn from the cradle or an octogenarian spared from the grave; whether it be a left-over bachelor, or a hand-me-down widower; though thou weddest fourscore times, thou shalt do no better:

13. Verily, verily, in the life of every woman there cometh a season when she yearneth for sentiments and neither the love of her "art" nor the adoration of a poodle dog is sufficient. 14. And a little unhappiness with an husband is more to be desired than verily, a woman with great loneliness without one. teth a man as a mosquito 15. Go to! Life without one of these h throughout a summer is as spaghetti without sauce and more insipid than bouillon without a babe. and even an Highbrow shall find an 8. And a wife with judgment which husband an agreeable distraction exceedeth his own is more uncanny from serious things!

ence to his previous masters. It was during one of these sniping incidents that the situation arose which brought about the formal vote of censure and his subsequent resignation

Before the Japanese peace treaty came into force and when Japan had no rights that were not in the last resort subject to the overriding authority of the Allied Headquarters, authority of the Allied Headquarters, the Japanese were glad to support a man who was in the highest favour with the dominant powers and who could represent national interests where it mattered most. But now the situation is different and American favour is politically disadvantageous to Mr. Yoshida, while appreciating of his services in negotiating for his country a remarkably indulgent peace country a remarkably indulgent peace treaty has proved a wasting asset. He is criticised from the extreme right as being too much of a democrat, from the extreme left as being a reactionary, and from all sides as being an American puppet. The Situation

The present situation in Japan is somewhat paradoxical in that na-tionalist feeling, which before the war was mobilised by the Right and identified with militarism and maximum armaments, is now associated with the Left and pacifism. The reason for this is obvious. Before the war armaments were regarded as war armaments were regarded as serving a purely Japanese foreign policy, whereas to-day the Japanese feel that they are designed for a policy serving American interests. This patriotic pacifism can be safely indulged in because the Japanese-American security pact has in effect oursedy provided for Japan's defence auready provided for Japan's defence. Indeed, because of Japan's insularity, thre is every prospect that if a general war was to break out it could be protected against invasion by American air and sea power alone. If, however, this defence were to break down then Japan can to some extent insure by not being actively involved on the American side. Mr. Yoshida himself has stated that he Yoshida himself has stated that he is not in favour of Japan entering a general Pacific Alliance, because its defence is guaranteed by the Ameri-can security pact and entry into wider groupings, "might adversely affect relations with other countries con-cerned."

American policy makers naturally find this attitude disappointing and rather frustrating. They most defin-itely under-estimated the psychologidefincal difficulties in the way of an armed alliance between recent ene-mies in war, especially when the defeated nation has been occupied for six years, and when the victors have carried anti-militarism to the point of banning certain medieval plays because they glorified warriors. But the Americans in their attempts to build up a Pacific defence system need Japan's help, and at the moment

7th,

Thursday, May 7th, 1953

YOUNGEST UNIVERSITY IN BRITAIN.

As the first of a series on overseas Universities, we are printing an account of the "baby" University College in North Staffordshire, an entirely residential College set up late in 1949. article was written by Mr. F. H. Johnston, Registrar of Melbourne University, on his return from England, and appeared recently in the University of Melbourne Gazette.

Since the end of the war the British universities have not only had to deal with large increases in numbers of students, reaching a total of 85,314 in 1950-51, compared with 50,246 in 1938-39 (in the provincial universities an increase of 123%), but they have also been forced to consider the direction and end of university teaching as a whole. In-creased financial aid to students, particularly from local authorities, has opened the way to a university education to thousands who, a gen-eration ago, would have had to seek employment long before the university entrance age of 17 or 18 years. For many of these students there is no tradition of books and learning within the home, and some people might well ask, if there are so many potential leaders of our new society potential leaders of our new society their already tottering far Eastern Diplomacy demands that this contri-bution be substantial. In the long run if present condi-tions of world conflict continue, it is however, unlikely that the unnat-ural alliance of nationalism and paci-tism will be permanent. The cause of ural alliance of nationalism and paci-fism will be permanent. The cause of rearmament will in the end prevail, provided that it can be linked to objectives more specifically Japanese than those endorsed by the Yoshida Cabinet and carried through by a government less susceptible to ob-structive pressures. This development may well be brought about through a shift of power to the extreme Right. These people wish to revise the dem-ocratic constitution adopted by Japan These people wish to revise the dem-ocratic constitution adopted by Japan under pressure from General Mac-Arthur, so as to restore the main features of the pre-war constitution with its strong bias in favour of executive authority. In this connec-tion the anti-Americanism of the left is working in favour of reaction, for the traditionalists deprecate inconve-nient clauses of the constituion as "American-styled" and "unsuited to Japan.

Continued from Page 7

The activities of the extreme Soc-ialist Left in conjunction with the strong Communist movement in strong Communist movement in Japan are also calculated to bring about a reaction to the Right. Both are fanatically anti-American, both are sympathetic towards Communist are sympathetic towards Communist China, and both are bitter opponents of Mr. Yoshida's anti-strike legisla-tion. Although they have no prospect of capturing power in Japan, they may in the near future produce enough disorder by political strikes and riots, to provide pretexts for the use of emergency powers and a transition to a semi-authoritarian government by the Right. If this comes about the world will once more be confronted with the menacing pros-pect of an armed and aggressive Japan; a prospect that would con-stitute a greater threat to New Zea-land's Social Security than the threats land's Social Security than the threats of party politicians. Whatever hap-pens, a disturbed and restless Japan means a disturbed and restless Pacific. John A. Stewart.

The University Grants Committee spent half a million on the universities in 1918; it now cheerfully spends 20 millions a year and expects to spend 25 within the next five years. In capital expenditure 50 millions were earmarked in the last quinquennium.

philosopher who thought in terms of life as a whole, persuaded a Labour philosopher who thought in terms of life as a whole, persuaded a Labour Government to found a new university college, which would supply the local university needs in North Staf-fordshire and, possibly, set a new pattern for univeristy life in the future. A charter was obtained in August, 1949, and Keele Hali. a country mansion with 154 acres of land attached, only two and a-haif miles from Newcastle-under-Lyme. which adjoins the railway town of Stoke-on-Trent, was bought. The fact that a Russian Grand Duke had once lived there is understood to have nothing to do with its acquisition. With £800,000 available for altera-tions, addition and new buildings, it seemed reasonable to expect that, ultimately, 600 students might be seemed reasonable to expect that, ultimately, 600 students might be provided with their educational and residential needs during the four years of their training. In October, 1950, the first 150 stud-ents were admitted; in October, 1952, the third group of 150 students began their first year with the 260 unvivous of the earlier two years so survivors of the earlier two years, so that 410 students are now in resi-

The College has worked on two main principles:-

(a) A residential college for both students and staff will produce the best results, and

(b) Over-specialisation is to be eschewed.

So we find stemming from these principles the following special fea-halls of residence (Lindsay Hall for women being the latest) or Army huts (of which over a hunndred add piquancy to the woods, lakes and grassland so rightly described as permanent amenities).

permanent amenities). (b) A four-year course leading to B.A. (either pass or honours) in-stead of the usual three. (c) A general introductory course of foundation studies compulsory for all first-year students, in which all professors and heads of departments combine in introducing the freshers to "the heritage of Western civilisa-tion, of modern society, and of the nature, methods, and influence of the experimental sciences." (300 lectures and 90 tutorials are provided in 30 weeks, or 13 teaching hours a week. and 90 tutorials are provided in 30 weeks, or 13 teaching hours a week. One wonders if there are still not enough books to reduce this lengthy sitting on hard benches with open note-book and pen, or do we still distrust the students' ability to learn from books and the society of his fellows?) fellows?)

fellows?) (d) Three further years of study, after the introductory hurdle is cleared, when the normal university studies are pursued in three main groups, the student being required to take subjects in at least two and preferably all three:— A Language Literature History

A. Language, Literature, History, Philosophy and Theology; B. Social and Political Studies, in-cluding Education; C. Mathematics and Science. The student intending to engage in teaching or social work may also, in the four years, obtain a technical qualification.

qualification. Two further special features are qualification. Two further special features are related and controversial. The volu-tion of a new university in England over the last century has been through several successive stages. University college status has been granted to an existing scholastic in-stitution, followed by many years of probation, during which the new col-lege is required to present its candi-dates for University of London de-grees and, finally, degree-conferring status and the title of university have been bestowed in the granting of a charter. Owens College, Man-chester, founded 1851, and Mason College, Birmingham, founded 1870, though teaching did not begin till 1880, are typical. Liverpool and Leeds, after similar beginnings, were in 1884 and 1887, joined with Man-chester as constituents of the Vic-toria University, founded in 1880 with Owens College as original member of this federation. Only in the early 20th century did these three become separate and complete universities in their own right. . Reading University College became their own right.

their own right. . Reading University College became a university just before the last war. Nottingham and Southampton have reached this goal since (Southamp-ton only in May, 1952), and Leices-ter, Hull and Exeter are the only other colleges now remaining. So as to give the greatest possible freedom in their experiment in general education, the new college has eral education, the new college has been given degree-conferring status from the start; but, as some safe-guard against a debased currency, three universities have been made god-parents—Oxford, Manchester and Birmingham. These god-parents are responsible, under the title of Spon-soning Universities for "the attain soring Universities, for "the attain-ment and maintenance of academic standards akin to those prevalent in other universities." Each of these

KIWI needs copy XXV They are your magazi I for you by you

"I F

Hei

well

the

have have o what

CRACCUM

needs copy of you orrosio So hakesp Kiwi Copy closes mentral ssilise week of Second Ten In mporta

WRITE IT NOW address eminis

three universities appoints two then I resentatives to the College Acat Council, which, in addition, int is some three members of the College his wor ate, and a representative of junior teaching staff; so that, Academic Council of ten, the soring Universities appoint six ust it. hers hers bers. Incidentally, the business of tive of the College is a Coum 33 members of very represen flavour, for it contains six repr tatives of the Court (the the cally governing body), five repr tatives of the Senate, 10 repr tatives of three local author (North Staffordshire itself and towns of Stoke and Burton-on-Th three representatives of the soring Universities and seven officio members. World. pt perha living, s views himself officio members.

soring Universities and seven officio members. Naturally opinions are divide England about the latest additi the family. With such disting god-parents, its parentage, at by adoption, is irreproachable repeat that the Russian Grand left Keele long before the i Some, who dislike children any have never seen the little two-old. But it is safe to say that mindedness will ensure that College will not be judged adv until its graduates have a chan finding their level. The recent death of its first cipal, Lord Lindsay, has an genuine sympathy, not only for Lindsay, but also for the Colleg is now expected that Professor

Lindsay, but also for the Colleg is now expected that Professor John Leonard-Jones, graduate of chester and Trinity College, bridge, who succeeds to the Prin ship after being Professor of T tical Physics at Bristol and the Plummer Professor of Theon Chemistry at Cambridge and Director-General of Scientific search during the war, will pur the leadership that will be so en tial to the success of the new tial to the success of the new versity college.

YOU HAVE BEEN WARNED

(a) With negligible exceptions, all students and members of staff live within the College in new houses or MAKE SURE OF IT.